

10 Restaurants Worth a Drive from Seattle

This calls for a road trip

by Megan Hill@MeganHillWriter Jun 12, 2017, 10:22am PDT

Face it: Sometimes, you just need to get the hell out of dodge. Luckily for locals and visitors, there's plenty worth traveling for, from wine country to the coast to the mountains.

But when you're unfamiliar with the dining landscape outside of Seattle, it can be challenging to pick a restaurant as memorable as the trip. Look hard enough, though, and you'll certainly find restaurants worth a road trip.

Whether you're looking for pit stops on the way to somewhere else, or just need an idea for a day trip, here are 10 restaurants worth the drive (and sometimes the ferry), with each about an hour or two from Seattle.

9 Alderbrook Resort & Spa

This fine-dining destination celebrates all things Hood Canal, with gems like spot prawns, fish, Dungeness crab, and even oysters and clams from the resort's own beach, just a few steps away. Every meal of the day is available here, but dinner is the real draw, with its carefully composed plates and superb wine list.

Alderbrook/Official

10 E Alderbrook Dr
Union, WA 98592
(360) 898-2200

<https://seattle.eater.com/maps/where-to-eat-seattle-road-trip-olympia>