Gobble, Gobble: Where to Dine out This Thanksgiving

2016/11/03 | Kristina Allen Moy

Thanksgiving is just around the corner (eek!) which means it's almost time to indulge in the quintessential meal of the year. Instead of getting up at the crack of dawn to prepare a crowd-pleasing feast, consider dining out. From straight-up traditional Thanksgiving menus to vegetarian versions of turkey and stuffing, we've rounded up the best places to dine out on Turkey Day. Psst... call and reserve a table now; most restaurants are only open for limited hours on Thanksgiving.

The Restaurant at Alderbrook

If you're looking for an unforgettable Thanksgiving dining experience, head to the The Restaurant at Alderbrook at Alderbrook Resort & Spa on Washington State's stunning Hood Canal. Alongside family and friends, celebrate Turkey Day with a special menu prepared by Alderbrook Executive Chef Josh Delgado. Feast on warm starters and enjoy main courses such as roasted organic turkey breast with turkey gravy and cranberry relish, prime rib with au jus and creamed horseradish, cedar-planked steelhead and handmade ravioli with swiss chard, cipollini onion, hazelnut and parmesan cream. Choose from an array of delicious sides including sweet potatoes with maple syrup, whipped Yukon potatoes, green beans, crispy brussel sprouts with bacon, roasted squash cream soup, warm kale salad and caesar salad. End your meal with a delicious dessert: cranberry cheesecake with a walnut crust, pumpkin pie with spiced chantilly cream or apple crostata with bourbon caramel.

Psst! Looking to spend more quality time with your loved ones over the holiday weekend? Stay the night and into Friday evening for the arrival of Santa Claus on the Lady Alderbrook, the tree and resort lighting (which is set to include more than ten miles of lights!), hot cocoa and fireworks on Nov. 25. Fill your stay with indulgent treatments at the full-service spa, get in a round of golf on the 18-hole PGA-class golf course or come back for seconds at The Restaurant at Alderbrook. Call 360-898-2200 for rates.
