TRAIL WALK SUGGESTIONS

Distances are round trip from trail head

- Viewpoint Loop (0.5 miles)
 A perfect place to enjoy the morning sun on the Olympics, or stretch your legs after dinner. The trail wanders in and out of lush forest, with a bench at the top for pausing and enjoying the view.
- Big Tree Loop (0.6 miles)
 For a little adventure try this rustic trail. Meander past the base of giant firs that escaped the logging of the last century. Wear sturdy footgear and expect to duck under a fallen tree.
- Huckleberry Hillclimb (2.2 miles)
 If you're feeling like a long hike, take this trail to the top of the hill. Along the way you'll dip in and out of the creek valley before climbing to a sweeping view of Hood Canal and the Olympics.
- Licorice Fern (3.2 miles)
 For an even longer route to the top explore this trail with interesting board walks and bridges. The Licorice Fern sprouts on tree trunks after a rain and disappears in dry weather. See if you can spot it along the way.
- Dogwood Ridge (2.8-3.3 miles)
 Our most remote trail offers several loop options and two fun creek crossings. A short side trip leads to a peek-a-boo view of Hood Canal.
